

The Campaign for Colorado State University COLLEGE OF APPLIED HUMAN SCIENCES

Scholars in Social Work Leadership Gift Opportunity - $250,000

What social issues are important to you?

Social problems:

poverty
drug addiction
infant mortality
parenting
racism
divorce
child custody
violence abuse
HIV/AIDS
health care access literacy
depression

Vulnerable groups:

elderly
homeless
disabled
immigrants
children
mentally ill

The list is actually endless.

The contributions that social workers make to the quality of life for individuals, families and communities are well known. Students at the School of Social Work provide over 83,000 volunteer hours of community service each year. AmeriCorps, a national organization designed to promote volunteerism, estimates that the value of CSU social work student's service to the community exceeds $1 million annually.

A unique opportunity to participate in life-changing work to prepare people to solve the social issues that are important to you.

The first of its kind Scholars in Social Work Leadership program is designed to prepare promising students for leadership positions in social work practice.

Students who are accepted into the leadership program will benefit from:

- Intensive mentoring by a faculty member and social work practitioner
- Monthly seminars that focus on the development of social work leadership
- An individualized program that integrates each scholar's field placement, a research project, and electives matching the chosen field of practice
- Scholarship support
- Support to conduct relevant research and present results to a national, state, and/or local conference, and
- Formal recognition of the completion of the program through acknowledgments on diplomas, at graduation, and on resumes.

To learn more, contact Lori Sims at 970.491.5669 or Lori.Sims@colostate.edu.